Plan together. Learn administration goals and discuss how your PTA can engage families in supporting those goals.

Connect to resources. Talk with the principal about how state and National PTA programs and resources support and enhance student learning.

Be respectful. You don’t always have to agree. Find a way to communicate in a professional and respectful manner with your school’s leadership.

Differentiate. Help school administration understand that your local unit is a separate and independent child advocacy group, part of and supported by a large and experienced association.

Meet regularly. Consider a regular monthly coffee or lunch with the principal, or arrange a regular phone call. Invite the superintendent to board meetings. Stay in touch.

Make the connection visible. Ask your principal to provide a report at PTA meetings, or to write an article for your PTA’s newsletter or post for the PTA blog. Plan an open-to-all “chat with the principal” or “coffee with the superintendent.”

Engage community. Invite community groups or youth-serving organizations to the school for PTA events. With the principal, identify community service opportunities for families.

Encourage participation in the budget process. Give parents the info they need to effectively advocate during budget time. Help parents support the education budget.

Stay on the same page. Follow up all phone calls and meetings with a summary of what was discussed and confirmation of any action steps to be taken by the PTA or administration.

Ask to speak at teachers meetings. Ask to be treated as a partner in education, a vital part of the connection between home and school.

Be adversarial. Developing a working relationship is well worth the effort. Find common ground. Model civil discourse, even if it is difficult to deal with administration.

Comingle funds. Mixing private and public funds is forbidden. No PTA funds should ever be deposited in a school account and no school funds should find their way into a PTA account.

Give up control of the checkbook. PTA is a separate entity from the school. PTA funds are controlled by PTA members and board. The checkbook resides with the treasurer.

Cede control of PTA meetings. All members—even administrators—have the same rights at meetings. The PTA meeting is run by the PTA President or the president’s delegate, in compliance with PTA bylaws and using Robert’s Rules.

Get in trouble with the IRS. Know the rules and file the proper forms with the IRS. PTA’s funds are not school funds; do not use the school’s EIN. Consult your state PTA if you have questions.

Open your PTA to theft. No administrator wants to deal to with the negative publicity surrounding a PTA’s poor money management. Use good business judgment, ensure financial reports and audits happen, and follow your state PTA’s rules about money-handling.

Entangle administration in personality issues. Sometimes personal issues interfere with PTA function. To maintain a professional, credible relationship with administration, work through your personal problems without involving administration. Seek help, if necessary, from your state PTA.

Become an ATM. PTA funds are raised to further PTA’s mission and goals, not to supplement school budgets. Collaborate with administration, but do not allow your PTA to be viewed as a bottomless source of funding available for all administration requests. Raise awareness rather than raise funds.

A Mindful Minute

BY JESSICA BROADWAY
Programs & Resource Development

May is mental health awareness month, it’s also one of the busiest months for PTA units. When we are in a season like this, it is even more important to remember to be aware of self care and when you and your team need a break.

BUT how can you take a break in a busy season?

Here are a few tips for reducing stress in busy seasons:

CLEAR COMMUNICATION
- Create a weekly task list with assignments and share with your board.

CONSISTENCY
- Make an action plan for the events and stick to it, last minute ideas are fun, but they also add extra stress and you need to be mindful of your board and volunteers.

CELEBRATE
- Plan time to reconnect and celebrate your year. Your board has accomplished a lot and most likely had challenges, they deserve to be celebrated and their efforts acknowledged.

#WellnessWednesday

1 in 6 U.S. youth experience a mental health condition each year, and only half of them receive treatment.

50% of all lifetime mental illness begins by age 14 and 75% by age 24.

How Do You Prioritize Mental Health?

It’s important to support the mental health of all children—before, during and after challenges arise — and to support parents’ and caregivers’ mental health too!

National PTA has developed the PTA Healthy Minds Program to empower families to make mental health an everyday priority. Check out the resources on this webpage, including informational and activity resources directly for families and resources to help PTAs run PTA Healthy Minds programming.

Family Toolkit

1. Build a Framework for Strong Mental Health Support - These resources will help guide your family in building healthy minds.
2. Tools to Take Action: Positive Mental Health Practices - This discussion guide can help your family navigate having conversations about mental health, and the action plan gives you some tangible actions your family can take to start making building healthy minds a regular part of your lives.
3. Get Help Now: Support Resources - School counselors, nurses, psychologists and psychiatrists can connect your family to mental health services and providers in your community, and reaching out to them should be your first step.

Parenting Through Depression

How to take care of yourself and your family

Feeling sad, lacking energy and struggling to enjoy time with your kids can make parenting feel overwhelming. Some parents begin experiencing depression around the birth of a child, but some develop it later or find that parenting intensifies existing mental health challenges. And it’s not just moms – parents of any gender can experience depression. If you’re a parent dealing with depression, you’re not alone, and treatment can help.

WRAPPING UP THE YEAR AND LOOKING FORWARD

As you wind down this school year now is the time to look ahead and plan for growing your PTA membership for next year. Here's a checklist to help you make that plan.

1) Gather data: look at your total membership numbers for last year by month; look at individual numbers for adults/parents, staff, students (if PTSA), and businesses.

2) What worked and what didn't?: evaluate your membership campaigns to see which were the most successful. Celebrate your successes! Look at launching/extending membership campaigns throughout the year, not just at the beginning.

3) Expand your resources: look at making your membership easier to navigate - is your form online and readily available? Use membership resources available to you from National PTA.

4) Set goals for next year: create realistic and focused goals for next year. Try honing in on a segment you haven't before (i.e. business memberships, or student memberships).

Good luck creating your game plan for next year!

Please reach out to us on the MOPTA Membership team if you have questions or need help.

"Burnout is often a more temporary condition in which an educator has exhausted the personal and professional resources necessary to the job. Demoralization occurs when an educator believes she is unable to perform the work in ways that uphold the high standards of the profession."
